Indigenous Interpreting+ (II+) meets the need for medical, community and court interpreting in indigenous languages that are not available through traditional interpreting services. The demand for indigenous language services is driven by the increasing proportion of indigenous people migrating to the United States, primarily in search of agricultural employment. Indigenous Interpreting+ specializes in indigenous languages from Mexico and Central America and is one of the few programs of its kind in the United States.

INTERPRETING SERVICES
Indigenous Interpreting+ helps health care providers, courts and public agencies meet regulatory requirements for language access, minimize costs and ensure quality services, using the latest delivery platforms, including video and telephonic.

II+ TRAINING
We offer a training program created specifically to train native speakers of indigenous languages. If you are interested in becoming part of the Indigenous Interpreting+ team, contact us for more information.

II+ CONSULTING
Our expert staff can help you with your language access needs concerning indigenous speakers and clients. Contact us for more information.

EXPERT TEAM
Under the direction of award-winning Indigenous Interpreting+ Director Victor Sosa, our expert team delivers high quality indigenous language interpreting services and training.

LOCATION
Indigenous Interpreting+ is located in “America’s Salad Bowl,” Salinas, California. California’s Central Coast is home to more than 30,000 indigenous immigrants and their families.

Mixteco, Triqui, Zapoteco, Chatino, Kanjobal, Amuzgo, Nahuatl, Tarasco/Purépecha, Tlapaneco, Yucateco Maya, Mam, K’iche’ (Quiché), Mixe, + More